Social workers protest PRC reversal of decision

By Margaret L. Chen

BEIJING — The Chinese government has reversed its decision to allow foreign social workers to work in the country, a move that has sparked a protest by social workers in Beijing. The protest was held on Tuesday, February 20, at the Chinese People's Association for Friendship with Foreign Countries (CPAFCF) headquarters. The protesters, who are mostly women, are demanding that the government reverse its decision and allow foreign social workers to work in the country. They are also demanding that the government apologize to the protesters and provide compensation for the damages to their careers.

The decision was announced by the Ministry of Civil Affairs on January 23, 2008. It stated that foreign social workers could only work in the country for a limited period of time and could not receive permanent residency. The decision was widely criticized by social workers and their supporters, who argued that it would undermine the profession and limit the opportunities for foreign social workers to work in the country. The protesters at the CPAFCF headquarters were demanding that the government reverse its decision and allow foreign social workers to work in the country. They were also demanding that the government apologize to the protesters and provide compensation for the damages to their careers.

GSIS RESPONSE TO THE OPEN LETTER OF MPSTA

The Government Service Insurance System finds grossly unfair the allegations of inefficiency made by the Manila Public School Teachers Association (MPSTA) over the state of their records in its database.

In answer to these unjust accusations, the GSIS, for the record, would like to state the following:

The Government Service Insurance System (GSIS) is a government-owned corporation under the Department of Education (DepEd) that provides health and life insurance to public school teachers and employees of government-owned or controlled institutions.

To date, GSIS has received a number of commendations and awards, including the 1993 Gawad Kalinga Award for its commitment to social justice and equity.

2. The DBS continues to protect lives and claims of members

GSIS has a long history of providing health and life insurance to public school teachers and employees of government-owned or controlled institutions.

By Nicky B. Santos

HOPE IS HIGH for the implementation of a single ticket system for Metro Manila's public transport. The system, which will allow commuters to use a single ticket for all modes of transport, is expected to be implemented soon.

Biofuels law seen breathing new life to Quezon's coconut industry

By Danilo C. Platon Jr.
Bureau Staff Writer

MANILA (PHILIPPINE HERALD) — The passage of the Biofuels Law, which allows the use of coconut oil for biofuel production, is seen as a game-changer for the coconut industry in Quezon province.

The law, which was signed by President Arroyo last week, is expected to boost the demand for coconut oil, which is used to produce biofuel. This is good news for the coconut farmers in Quezon, who are the main producers of coconut oil in the province.

Quezon's coconut industry has been struggling for years due to low prices and competition from other sources of coconut oil. The new law is expected to provide a stable market for coconut oil, which will help farmers to increase their income.

The law also allows for the use of coconut oil in the production of biofuel, which is a more environmentally friendly source of energy. This is expected to encourage the use of biofuel, which will further boost the demand for coconut oil.

Quezon's coconut industry is a vital part of the province's economy. It provides a source of income for many farmers and is a major export for the province. The new law is expected to breathe new life into the industry and help farmers to prosper.

The law is expected to be implemented soon, and it is hoped that it will bring about a significant improvement in the lives of coconut farmers in Quezon. The law is a testament to the government's commitment to supporting the agricultural sector and promoting sustainable development.
